Redirection of Support

(1) “Redirect” or “redirection of support” means the process of distributing support that would otherwise be paid to the judgment creditor to a person who has physical custody of one or more children covered by a child support order.

(2) The administrator will redirect support to a person with physical custody of one or more children covered by a child support order under the following circumstances:

(a) The judgment creditor submits a notarized authorization for support to be redirected to person with physical custody of one or more children covered by a child support order; or

(b) The administrator has joined a person with physical custody of one or more children to a child support order pursuant to OAR 137-055-3500 and the order is not being modified.

(3) If the order is a class order as defined in OAR 137-055-1020(7) and support is redirected under this rule for less than all of the children for whom support is ordered, each child is attributed an equal share of the monthly support amount.

(4) The redirection of support is an other than contested case order and may be appealed pursuant to ORS 183.484.
